KING KRAMER WINS GREAT MILE

Sets Heart Breaking Pace and Then Wins Out With Ease.

In spite of the fact that the races have been away above par this season, every meet seems to be an improvement on the W previous one. Last night it was no exception and the big crowd was on its tip toes at the finish of every event. Maybe the stop watch doesn't show it, but the bikers seem to go faster in every succeeding race, and there is a hurried examination of The Heraid record book after every finish to see if a record has gone by the boards. While the pedal pushers did not break any last evening they came k so close to it on a couple of occasions that it was uncomfortable for the champions of bygone days who hold the marks. The weather was fine, the crowd was big and the entire program passed off without a hitch. Probably the one best event of the evening was the mile open. Even the heats of this were good, but in the swift revolving pedals of a bicycle. Lawson did not ride last evening and Clarke remained out of this race. This left King Kramer to fight whatever combinations might be formed against him.

Burrls and Munroe were put in as pacemakers and made it fast from the snap of the gun. Kramer caught the pace and McFarland got the king's wheel. Four laps from home Wilcox started around the top of the bank with a frightful jump and Kramer was forced to go around his pace to keep Wilcox from taking the lead. For one lap Wilcox fought Kramer, and then gave it up. At this instant Hollister jumped from behind and began a fierce onslaught on Kramer for began a fierce onslaught on Kramer for took a full lap for Kramer to make Brooklyn

Hollister get back under cover and just then the bell rang for the last lap and half. The last sprint was on and the ing unwound for the final effort to thetape. He gave a mighty jump and nearly shook McFarland off who had been sleigh riding from the start. The entire bunch fought to hold on and not a man dared to leave his place to fight it out at the finish. Kramer won with ease. It was a Batteries-

Samuelson Upsets Talent.

Billy Samuelson somewhat upset the talent in the three-quarter mile handi-cap professional. This was Samuelson's first appearance on the track this year and the handicapper was kind. Riding from the fifty-five-yard mark he did a little pace setting that made it impossible for Clarke riding from scratch to within a confidence of the control of ble for Clarke riding from scratch to get within qualifying distance. Kramer was more fortunate in his heat and qualified. This brought the king up against the same conditions in the final that Clarke met in his trial. Samuelson pulling the front burner got Downing to pull him, but the heady one was unequal to the occasion and could not get the New Jersey boy up. Two laps from home, seeing it was impossible to get the money. Kramer sat up and did not finish. It turned out that Samuelson was pulling Pye and a lap from home he turned Clarke's "buddy" loose for the final sprint and Pye, equal to the occasion, made a runaway race of it. The time, 1:21, is un-der the world's record and gives one an idea of what the scratch bunch was up

It made a pretty sight, a bunch of about twenty-five riders on the track at one time. For several laps they actually circled the track without anyone falling. But the inevitable had to come and two out of the middle of this bunch pitched headlong without taking any more with them. Four laps from home Red Robin-son started as if he had a hurry up call to deliver some one a turkey dinner, with orders that the man was extra hungry. Red misjudged his distance and before he

The five-mile tandem-paced race between Clarke and McFarland was easily also ran. won by "the kangaroo." The men were furnished tandem pace until two laps from home, when McFarland started for the tape, with Clarke on his rear wheel. On the last lap, Clarke spread eagled Mc-Earland and ran away from him, winning Divorce Matinee, Board of Works At that time France was at war with and Council Committees Fall Flat. There was no divorce court yesterday. The board of public works did not meet because of a quorum not being in the city, and, finally, the city council committee on municipal laws did not consider the electrical wiring ordinance last evening.

All around it was a day of disappointments. The failure of the regular divorce matinee to materialize is almost without precedent, the failure of the board of public works to meet on the scheduled date happens now and then, and the failure of the council committee on municipal laws to do anything is a common occurrence.

The divorce court will be held next week, the board of public works will surely meet then, but the council committee on municipal laws will continue to be an one on watch on the towers to note the signals from the others. Couldn't Get Through the Book.

Upton Sinclair and a publisher's reader net the other day in New York. The talk turned at once to literature, and the reader mentioned proudly that a certain popular novel, after thirteen rejections, had been accepted by him and had gained for his house nearly a hundred thousand dollars.

"A mighty good book it is, too," said the reader. "Have you read it?"
"Yes," said Mr. Sinclair.
"Yes," said Mr. Sinclair. "Yes, said Mr. Sinciair.
"Well, what do you think of it?"
"There is only one thing to be said in its favor," the young novelist answered.
"A friend of mine during the Spanish-American war carried it in his breast pocket, and a ball ricocheted against his ribs, but the book saved him. The ball

The Substitute.

Guy Laking, the superintendent of King Edward's armorial collections, is visiting America to examine the armor gathered here. At a dinner in New York Mr. Laking told a story about a pretty American duchess. pretty duchess," he said, "sat in her drawing room, and her little son the marquis, stood beside her in lace and

"A peer entering bowed over the duchess' white hand, and then said to the little marquis:
""Will you give me a kiss, my dear?"
"The boy, shrinking behind his mother, said bashfully: "Mamma will give you one."

Her Idea of Saving.

Samuel Untermeyer, the insurance expert, said the other day of a certain proposed retrenchment: "It would be a good thing, an excellent thing, all around. But on some it would bear harder than on others. Hence discontent and growling, the usual accompaniment of economics. It is like the case of the husband who, looking at his wife, reproachfully said:

"My love, in view of the approaching holidays, I thought we were going to practice economy for a time?"

"Oh, so we are dear, the lady answered. I went down town and countermanded the order you had given your tailor for a $250 fur-lined overcoat, and got instead an ermine stole that only cost $200. A clean saving, you see, of $50. Not bad for one day, was it?" 'It would be a good thing, an excellent

A Happy Ending.

A noted advertising expert was talk-ing the other day about the disappear-ance of the reading advertisement. ance of the reading advertisement.

"The reading advertisement," he said,
"the advertisement gotten up to look like news, is no longer popular because advertisers have found that, instead of pleasing and impressing the people, it angers them. It angers everybody, you know, to be fooled.

"And some of these reading advertisements were enough to fool a wizard. In fact, I know of one case—" he paused and chuckled. Then he went on: "Old

Enough Hard Luck.

Lancia, the Italian automobilist, was asked the other day by a reporter if he did not think motor racing too dangerous.

"Dangerous—yes." M. Lancia replied.

"Too dangerous—no. For nothing that benefits mankind—and automobiles benefit mankind inexpressibly—is too dangerous for a man to undertake. I have a good deal of contempt for men who are not brave to the point of rashness. I am not brave to the point of rashness. I am like a highwayman who held up a gasoline runabout on the outskirts of Rome.

"This highwayman stopped the runabout with a shot in the air. Then he ran forth from the tomb that had concealed him—the hold-up happened on the Appian Way—and found, to his surprise, only a woman in the little ear.

"Where madam, is your husband? he demanded, sternly and suspiciously.

"He's under the seat, she answered, flushing.

He's under the seat, she answered, flushing.
"'Then, said the highwayman. I won't take anything. It's bad enough to have a husband like that without being robbed in the bargain."

An Untried Friend. Clyde Fitch at a dinner in Philadelphia raised the originality of certain French playwrights.
"Originality," he said. "is what above all things the drama needs. Too many writers for the stage are like a western friend of mine. A young lady said to my 'Isn't it awfully, awfully difficult to of find new ideas for plays?'

The Sole Criterion. John Sloan, the noted illustrator and etcher, laid down a newspaper account of the sale of a Bougereau for $75,000. "Such sales," he said, "remind me of the conversation of old Gobsa Golde and his daughter Lotta. 'Well, did ye buy that picter?' said

'No,' the old man answered.

Neat Epigram.

A charming epigram adorned an address that Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes made on her last visit to Detroit. The brilliant young lady was rejoicing over the fact that in the slums woman, no matter how wretched her case, kept her speech pure, as a rule, of profanity.
